

СТУДЕНТСКА РАБОТА - STUDENT JOB OPPORTUNITY – FIELD RESEARCHER

ICF is looking for students to help deliver a large, international project for the European Commission on nutrition. This is a paid opportunity.

ICF is a leading provider of studies for the European Commission and its agencies.

The study means to collect information on the composition (ingredients and nutrients) of food products available in supermarkets. This will contribute to national and EU initiatives to improve nutrition in Europe.

About the role

You will be collecting information by taking pictures of the labels on food products. For this purpose, you will use a smartphone application. You will be part of a team of data collectors and your work will be coordinated by a team of ICF analysts.

Prior to commencing the fieldwork, you will be required to download an application on your smartphone and attend a webinar training session organised by ICF.

Upon completing this training session, you will be sent to supermarkets to take pictures of certain categories of products.

For each product, you will use the app you downloaded to take pictures of food labels. You will also enter some product details manually into the app.

You will then submit your findings through the app to a centralised database.
